Properties of Air

'Learning by doing' is the best way to achieve the desirable learning outcomes. Through art integration, experiential learning, practical, projects, demonstrations and presentations, students get ample opportunities to display their learning in the classroom. These activities are evenly spread in the instructional process and children are actively engaged. These activities also foster team work and coordination skills among children.

KINDERGARTEN

Picnics are just fun and a great learning experience in the open environs. Sanskriti kids organized a one-day picnic to Bhagyanagar Nandanavanam so that kids could witness a world of fun and indulge in learning that can never happen in classrooms. The picnic place was a mystery that held a lot of surprises for us. The Bhagyanagar Nandanavanam Park sits in a beautiful place filled with greenery, deer and peacocks around. Kids enjoyed this trip with immense joy. They were very excited on seeing the deer and the peacocks in their natural environment. Pleasant weather, further added to the refreshing feeling of being close to nature. Children relished their snacks, sitting in large groups, under the shade of trees and enjoying their light hearted conversations with their teachers. It was a great experience.

STORYTIME

Story telling is both an art and science. If kids can delve into their imagination and narrate simple stories with their expressions and articulation, they are surely going to be confident speakers of tomorrow. With this aim, a story telling competition was organized for the preprimary kids. Kids brought interesting props, puppets and toys to make their stories livelier. Students narrated story using props, voice modulation, confidence and recalled the sequence. Every one participated with great zeal. The best story tellers were given certificates for their distinguished positions.

The pre-primary kids were sensitized about the importance of soil through various activities. They were taken into the garden to see how soil nourishes the plants to produce fruits, flowers and seeds. They touched the soil to feel its texture and also observed how the roots are held in the soil. They made some slogans and also understood that we should not pollute the soil.

Li'l Chefs Activity

Kindergarten kids donned their chef caps displaying their culinary skills through flameless cooking. This activity is carried out to develop their understanding about ingredients that can be eaten raw and how an instant dish can be prepared, thus promoting life skills. Kids prepared Muffin decoration using different ingredients like tutti frutti, colourful sprinklers and had great fun relishing the recipe.
